Foster Program

Since the Hanna S.P.C.A doesn't have a shelter facility, we rely completely on volunteers who are willing to open their homes and become a Foster Home. Foster homes allow people to rescue homeless animals from a variety of situations by providing these animals with temporary care and shelter until they are adopted. Foster homes are asked to provide foster animals with plenty of love, adequate food and water, shelter from the elements, and exercise. Administering medication may also be necessary. In addition to providing the basics, foster homes may also be asked to transport foster animals to veterinary appointments and adoption events. Depending on the individual situation and policies of the Hanna S.P.C.A, foster homes will likely be reimbursed for supplies, such as food, litter and toys, and for any veterinary costs incurred in the care of the animal.

Foster homes play a crucial role in rehabilitating rescued animals. They are in a unique position to help abused or neglected animals learn how to love and trust again. Foster homes can help these animals become more "adoptable" by providing socialization and basic training. By teaching or re-teaching an animal how to live in a home setting, foster homes help increase the odds for a smooth and successful transition into a permanent adoptive home.

In the case of orphaned baby animals, foster homes provide surrogate parenting and round-the-clock care for tiny animals that are too young to survive on their own. By providing orphaned animals with plenty of nutrition, love, and stimulation during their first 8 weeks of life, foster homes help ensure their health and survival as adults.
